The screenshot shows a search results page for the query "social integration". The search bar at the top contains the query and a microphone icon. Below the search bar, the results are displayed in a list format. The first result is a book titled "Events and social integration: How sport and outdoor events can work as drivers for newcomers' social integration" by Setoodegan, Parisa; Pettersson, Robert, published in 2021. The second result is a journal article titled "Bulletin on social integration policies" from the United Nations Department of Economic and Social Affairs, dated 2002. The page includes a "Refine results" button and a "Sort by" dropdown menu. A red arrow points from the "Sort by" dropdown to a text box explaining the sorting options. Another text box explains the "Results list" content. A third text box explains the "Refine results" options.

2021 JUN 8 (NewsRx) -- By a News Reporter-Staff News Editor at TB & Outbreaks Week -- New research on Coronavirus - COVID-19 is the subject of a report. According to news reporting originating in Hong Kong, People's Republic of China, by NewsRx journalists, research stated, "The ongoing coronavirus pandemic threatens physical and psychological health. We examined whether social dominance orientation (SDO), a preference for inequality among social groups, contributes to mental health during the pandemic."

The news reporters obtained a quote from the research from the University of Hong Kong, "In particular, we predicted that people high in SDO would experience higher levels of depression than others low in SDO. Our results (N = 2008) showed that SDO was positively associated with depression. In addition, participants' perceived lifestyle changes moderated the association between SDO and depression."

According to the news reporters, the research concluded: "We also discuss the theoretical and practical implications of the current work."

This research has been peer-reviewed.

Troubleshooting

Q: Can I search for everything that are available in the databases subscribed by the library?

A: FIND@HKUL is a tool for discovering indexed information, it does not guarantee access to all full text articles retrieved.

In fact, full text accessibility depends on a number of contributing factors such as subscription coverage, source of the article, and occasional changes to the subscription platform and configuration on the vendor's side.

In many cases, the external changes are beyond the Libraries' knowledge and control.

Troubleshooting

Q: Can I have remote access to the ebooks and online articles subscribed by other local university libraries via Find@HKUL?

A: No. Remote access to non-HKUL electronic resources is restricted to the eligible users of the hosting libraries due to licensing agreement. Access to these electronic resources may be available within those libraries. You may apply for a JULAC card to visit and use the resources on-site.

The screenshot shows the Google Scholar interface. At the top, the search bar contains the text "Social ties and health: The benefits of social integration". Below the search bar, the "Articles" section displays the search results. On the left, there are filters for "Any time", "Since 2020", "Since 2019", "Since 2016", and "Custom range...". Below these, there are sorting options: "Sort by relevance" and "Sort by date". The main article entry is titled "Social ties and health: The benefits of social integration" by "TE Seeman - Annals of epidemiology, 1996 - Elsevier". The abstract text follows: "This article explores the relationship between level of social integration and various aspects of health. A search of the literature published since the mid-1970s (under the MEDLINE key words, 'social ties', 'social network', 'social isolation', 'social environment') presented strong evidence that social integration leads to reduced mortality risks, and to a better state of mental health. The evidence on physical health outcomes is less conclusive. There is no consistent evidence that social integration affects the incidence of disease (at least for ...". At the bottom of the article entry, there are links for "☆", "99", "Cited by 1390", "Related articles", "All 7 versions", and "Web of Science: 585". A red arrow points from the text "Click to check full text at HKUL" to a red-bordered box containing the text "View It@HKUL".
